"He who is not courageous enough to take risks will accomplish nothing in life." – Muhammad Ali

How does someone get the courage to make a change? Sometimes circumstances that are out of you control drive change. When presented with change, the right decision makes a positive movement. I have a proven history of self-starting and earned respect from management of several industries. Knowledge gained is parsed and reapplied into a new version for success, I seek the excitement in the next task. Future goals and a personal need for continuous learning drive me.

I bring to you,21 strong organizational skills, creative ideas and an even stronger belief that the "can't" mindset should not exist. The very reason we are here today, doing what we do, creating what we create and launching what we launch proves that anything is possible! With my mind on your side, you will continue to grow more positive than ever.

I am searching for a lifetime career, where overcoming obstacles and building solutions. I want to be a part of the building blocks that give our users a better experience.

"If you build it, he will come" - Ray Kinsella (Kevin Costner, Field of Dreams 1989)

Let's build that connection together!
